

The image features three hand-woven baskets of varying sizes and shades of brown. The largest basket is in the background, a medium-sized one is in the foreground on the left, and a smaller one is in the foreground on the right. All baskets are made of thick, textured fibers, likely natural materials like straw or reeds, woven in a consistent, tight pattern. The lighting is soft and even, highlighting the intricate texture of the weaving. The background is a plain, light blue-grey color, which makes the natural tones of the baskets stand out.
